We think about the construction process not to win prizes but to be cost effective to build for our clients. There is often a big gap between the designers ideas and actual construction. This can be a difficult relationship to manage, this is why we are a design and construct business because we can do this all in-house. Read on to ensure you have the right specialists for the job.

OR BUILDING

BUYING

What type of building would suit you and your business? Take a look at what's available on the market, make a list of all the elements that draw you to these buildings. Then come talk with us because you coming to the end of your lease and you want to look at and understand the benefits of investing in your own premises. Or you've simply out grown your current setup and need to move.

Ask yourself these questions as a guide to help you make the right decision.

1. What's the best location for all my business's needs ?
2. What type of access do my business need?
3. What is the ideal configuration and size for my warehouse/manufacturing operation to maximise efficiency ?
4. What would be the ideal configuration and size for my office/admin areas to maximise efficiency ?
